Concept of the exhibition:	The Lindenau-Museum at Altenburg (45 km to the south of the city of Leipzig) harbors a barely known treasure. The museum has one of the most important collections of early Italian paintings (13th to 16th centuries). Bernhard August von Lindenau (1779-1854) brought together a collection of 180 panels. The collection focuses on the art centres of Florence and Siena. The Liechtenstein National Museum at Vaduz presents 27 panels particularly painted in Florence, Siena und Umbria, among them by Lippo Memmi, Giovanni di Paolo, Sano di Pietro, Giovanni Santi (father of Raphael), Marco Zoppo, Luca Signorelli and Giovanni di Francesco Ciambella known as Il Fantasia who simultaneously painted as Raphael in Perugia and there are also links to the early

images of the Madonna painted by Raphael.

The veneration of Mary experienced a peak during the 13th and 16th centuries in the West. Many churches were dedicated to Mary and were decorated with sculptures of Mary. This intensive Marian veneration was also expressed by Western imagery, and led to the first remarkable blossoming of painting above all in Tuscany, Umbria and Upper Italy. Some of the most captivating paintings of Mary with the Infant Jesus were created. These paintings fascinate even nowadays. The exhibition in the National Museum presents above all paintings of Mary with the Infant Jesus. Some paintings depict other scenes which illustrate the art of painting in Tuscany and Umbria from approx. 1325/1330 and 1510.
